Spiritual & Intuitive Code of Ethics and Standards of Practice rev. Nov 1, 2025

The Association for Integrative & Spiritual Hypnotherapists (AISH) is founded upon the principles of integrity, compassion, and spiritual alignment. Our members recognize that hypnotherapy and intuitive work are sacred callings—honoring both professional excellence and the spiritual evolution of each client.

All members agree to uphold this Code of Ethics and Standards of Practice as a reflection of their spiritual integrity and professional responsibility.

1. Sacred Competence & Lifelong Growth

Members honor the sacred trust placed in them by providing only those services for which they are properly trained and spiritually guided to offer.

They commit to continuous personal, professional, and spiritual development through education, mentorship, and self-reflection.

Members stay current with both scientific understanding and spiritual wisdom, blending the two with discernment and humility.

When a client's needs extend beyond their scope of expertise, members shall refer with compassion and transparency to the most suitable practitioner.

2. Integrity, Authenticity & Spiritual Alignment

Members act with truth, fairness, and respect in all professional and spiritual interactions.

They present themselves authentically, never misrepresenting credentials, gifts, or training.

Members understand that intuitive and energetic abilities carry great responsibility and use these gifts only in service of the client's highest good.

Exploitation—emotional, financial, sexual, or spiritual—is strictly forbidden.

Each practitioner is expected to embody the values they teach, modeling integrity, humility, and compassion.

3. Informed Consent & Empowered Choice

Members ensure clients are fully informed about the nature and purpose of sessions—whether therapeutic, spiritual, or educational.

Clients are always free to choose, question, or discontinue services at any time.

Before any recording, demonstration, or group experience, written consent is obtained.

When working with minors, parental consent is required, and care is taken to protect the child's spiritual and emotional safety.

Empowerment is a cornerstone of ethical practice: clients remain sovereign over their own healing journey.

4. Prosperity with Integrity

Financial exchanges are sacred agreements of energy.

Members are transparent about fees, session structure, and cancellation policies before services begin.

All financial practices comply with applicable laws and uphold fairness and respect.

Practitioners avoid dual or dependent relationships that could compromise professional integrity or spiritual neutrality.

Abundance and prosperity are honored as natural expressions of universal flow—never at the expense of ethics or integrity.

5. Sacred Confidentiality & Record Keeping

Client confidentiality is a sacred covenant.

Information is held in trust and shared only with the client's written permission, under legal obligation, or for professional consultation under anonymity.

Session notes and recordings are treated as sacred records, kept secure and private.

When sharing case studies for teaching or publication, all identifying information must be removed.

Members recognize that holding confidentiality is both a professional duty and an energetic responsibility of deep respect.

6. Collaboration, Guidance & Graceful Closure

Members honor collaboration with other practitioners, healers, and healthcare providers when it supports the client's holistic well-being.

They seek supervision, peer guidance, or mentorship when needed for clarity and growth.

When a session or relationship no longer serves the client's highest good, members release with grace and refer as appropriate, trusting divine timing and mutual respect.

7. Ethical Business & Honoring Creation

Members respect the creative work and spiritual contributions of others.

They give credit and seek permission when using or adapting another's teachings, writings, or intellectual property.

Advertising and public statements must reflect truth and integrity—free of exaggerated claims, false promises, or spiritual manipulation.

Members uplift rather than compete, knowing that all work done in love contributes to collective healing.

8. Universal Respect & Spiritual Equality

Discrimination or bias of any kind—based on race, gender, sexual orientation, religion, or belief system—has no place in spiritual or professional practice.

Members recognize the divine essence in every being and treat all clients, students, and colleagues with compassion, patience, and nonjudgment.

Each client's spiritual path is honored without interference or imposition of belief.

9. Accountability & Ethical Responsibility

Members are accountable to themselves, their clients, and the AISH community for maintaining ethical integrity.

They must promptly report any legal, ethical, or disciplinary matters that could affect professional standing.

Members are encouraged to seek resolution through dialogue, mediation, or spiritual reflection before escalation.

False accusations, gossip, or slander against others are considered violations of spiritual and ethical law.

Every member is a steward of the collective vibration of AISH and contributes to its energy of light, integrity, and love.

10. Evolution of the Code

This Code of Ethics is a living document—rooted in truth, yet evolving with the growth of our collective consciousness.

Members agree to remain open to updates, revisions, and continued reflection as both the profession and humanity expand in awareness.
